Development

This section contains just about everything you need to know if you're actively involved with the KIELER project. While the Processes section documents the processes we use to develop KIELER, this section documents our application of the processes, helps new developers get started, and provides reference documentation for technical aspects.

These are the important subsections:

Guidelines	Reference documentation for daily development routine. Also contains a Getting Started guide for new developers.
Testing	Documents our unit test infrastructure.
Meetings	Minutes of all the meetings we have.
